Gift For An Invalid.

When planning your holiday gifts, don't forget the invalid. Make a bag of dainty flowered silk or cretonne, running inch-wide satin ribbon in the top for a draw string, and lining it with delicately scented silk. Have the drawstrings very long so it can be hung on the bedpost in easy reach of the invalid's hand, without the necessity of her raising herself in bed.

In the bag is a small paper pad, pencil, handkerchief, and anything she may need that otherwise would have to be handed to her by an attendant.

Sometimes a little surprise can be slipped in the bag that will give much happiness and help to pass the weary hours of suffering.

Richard Tarbell, Waterbury Youth, Took O'Brien's Money But Was Caught.

Waterbury, Dec. 5.—Richard Tarbell, the youth who furnished so much apprehension by his disappearance recently and who was set to work when brought back from Burlington, furnished more trouble yesterday when he took $13 in money from the house of Michael O'Brien and had started on another flight when caught at the railroad station.

Young Tarbell was working for the O'Briens, and yesterday morning both Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien had occasion to leave home for a time, having meanwhile set Tarbell to work on the wood-pole. When they returned he was not present, and they looked at a pocket-book which had been left in the house. Only to learn that $13 was gone. They also couldn't find an order for $15, drawn on the town of Duxbury.

The O'Briens notified Deputy Sheriff O'Neil, who at once went to the railroad station, where he discovered young Tarbell. He arrested the youth and took him before Justice J. K. Fullerton at once. Tarbell was ordered committed to the house of correction, and he was taken there last night by Sheriff Tracy. The boy denied having taken the town order for $15.

STONISHED DESTROYED

N. Pelaggi & Co. of Northfield Lost $40,000 To-day

SERIOUS BLOW TO VILLAGE

Main Shed and Powerhouse Entirely Wiped Out, and Blacksmith Shop Partially Burned--Many Thrown Out of Employment.

Northfield, Dec. 5.—The large new granite manufacturing plant of N. Pelaggi & Co., located near the Central Vermont freight station, was completely destroyed by fire early this morning, and much valuable work and rough stock was ruined. The total loss is estimated at $40,000, with an insurance of $30,000.

The fire was discovered shortly after 2 o'clock by Chief of Police Dunham, who at once turned in an alarm. When the firemen reached the scene the plant was blazing furiously, the flames having gained a good start before being found. The firemen worked hard but could not save a timber of the main building, which was 250 feet long and 50 feet wide. With it was destroyed the powerhouse and also part of the blacksmith shop. At one time the fire caught on the corn factory of Payson Bros., but the flames were easily extinguished.

Mr. Pelaggi, the head of the concern, was in New York City at the time of the fire, and he was telegraphed to as soon as possible. Until he returns, it will not be definitely known just how much the damage was. However, it is known that Pelaggi & Co. carried a great deal of orders for the winter, enough work, it is said, to keep a large force at work all winter. Included in the orders were three large vault jobs, and, in addition, much rough stock had just been moved into the plant. Much of the granite, if not all, was ruined by the fire. The plant was built only three years ago and was one of the best in the village, being well equipped.

A large number of workmen will be thrown out of work, temporarily at least, and Northfield will feel the loss severely. Much sympathy is also felt for the firm, which had worked up a good business here.

The cause of the fire is not known, but it is supposed that the flames broke out in the boiler room. That was the indication to those who first arrived at the scene of the fire. The structures burned fiercely for several hours.

DISASTROUS FIRE NEAR PLAINFIELD

Barn and Outbuildings of Harry Martin Wiped Out This Forenoon, Making Loss of $8,000.

Plainfield, Dec. 5.—The large barn belonging to Harry Martin on his farm one mile out of this village was burned to the ground this forenoon between 10 and 11 o'clock, with its entire contents of hay, stock and farming implements. Other outbuildings adjoining the barn, but of lesser value, were also destroyed. It was with difficulty that the farmhouse was saved, and even though several low sheds leading from the barn to the house were torn away to stay the progress of the flames, it is likely that all would have been consumed had it not been for the timely arrival of the chemical engine from Marshfield village. Several times the shingled roof of the house became ignited.

The barn is located in the town of Marshfield. The origin of the fire is ascribed to the explosion of a gasoline engine used in pressing hay about the farm. A large gang of men was employed about the machinery and barn, when the explosion occurred without warning. Instantly the flames spread to every corner of the large structure and with the ignition of large quantities of hay it soon became evident that nothing could be done to save the building or its contents. Attention was directed to saving the house and to this and several sheds directly in the path of the flames were quickly razed to the ground.

It was nearly 11 o'clock when the fire fighters were spelled by the Marshfield fire department. Applications of the chemicals soon averted the danger which threatened the house. The barn was a mass of ruins within a short time after the fire broke out.

Damage to the barn and outbuildings may be roughly estimated at $8,000, the loss being partially covered by insurance. Insurance on the barn proper was carried in the Vermont Mutual Co. to the extent of $1,800. The stock was insured for $500. The barn, one of the largest structures of its kind in Plainfield, was built several years ago at a cost of $2,000. A silo filled with ensilage was destroyed by the flames, together with 150 tons of hay.

Twenty milch cows met death in the flames, as well as 15 hogs and a large flock of hens. Fortunately the horses were being used about the farm when the fire started. Eye witnesses of the fire say that the flames spread with such rapidity that no effort could be made to save the contents of the barn or outbuildings. A large number of people from this village went to the farm and assisted in emptying the threatened farmhouse of its contents.

BOX FACTORY GONE.

Jersey City Fire, Threatened To Do Very Much Damage.

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 5.—The immense paper box factory of the James Lee company was practically destroyed by fire which yesterday afternoon threatened to cause several hundred thousand dollars damage. The factory was a five-story brick structure at 251 Varik street, and was stuffed full of inflammable paper stock and finished boxes. The fire started shortly before noon, and an hour later the walls of the building began to fall. Several hundred men and girls escaped in good order, although the flames were curling about their feet as they ran down the stairway.

The firemen, who had been out all night at the fire which destroyed the plant of the United States Express company, were slow in answering the alarm, and the fire had such good headway before the high northwest wind that the firemen soon turned their attention to protecting the neighboring property. So far as known nobody has been injured.

Following Closely After Another Fire of Unknown Origin, This Occurrence Has Caused Sensation in India.

BOY BURNED TO DEATH.

Fire Tragedy at Providence When He Got Too Near Stove.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 5.—While tucked away in a big down quilt, Abel Ross, three years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross of South Main and Pike streets, was burned to death yesterday.

Mrs. Ross left the little fellow lying on a couch near the kitchen stove, while she went to a nearby store to order groceries. It is believed that during her absence the child so shifted his position that the edge of the comforter with which he was covered brushed against the stove and took fire.

Returning to the house, the mother found the boy wrapped in flames. Her cries attracted others, who assisted in extinguishing the fire, but not before the child had been fatally burned.

WHOLE TOWN SHAKEN BY BIG EXPLOSION

Most of 200 Workmen in Fireworks Factory at Weymouth, Mass., Were Cut By Glass and One May Die.

Weymouth, Mass., Dec. 5.—An explosion that shook the entire town destroyed the mixing building of the fireworks factory of E. S. Hunt & Co. to-day. Most of the two hundred employees of the concern were somewhat cut by flying glass. Joseph Walsh was so badly burned that he may die. The cause of the explosion is not known. The mixing building was lifted from its foundation and toppled in a heap one hundred feet from its site. The property loss is estimated to be $200,000.

FORGERY CHARGED.

District Attorney Probing Ward 20 Nomination Papers.

Boston, Dec. 5.—Information reached city hall yesterday that the district attorney's office has taken up the investigation of charges that the nomination papers filed for the three independent Republican candidates for the House in ward 20 contained forged signatures and should not have been accepted by the officials of the secretary of state's office.

The police are at work on the case and more than a score of those whose names were signed to the papers have been interviewed.

The Republican leaders in the ward, who called upon the district attorney to make an investigation, contend that the three independent Republicans were put into the field for the purpose of drawing away votes from the three Republican candidates and in that way elected the Democrats.

MANY BILLS SENT TO CITY COUNCIL

Included Two Old Statements in Connection With Change of River Bed--Some Cases of Destitution Reported.

A great quantity of municipal bills were presented to the Barre city council at the regular meeting last evening. In fact, most of the business of the one-hour session was devoted to presentation of bills from many sources. In the first place, there were the usual weekly warrants for department work, which were ordered paid, and, in addition to them, were warrants for the month's bills, together with a few miscellaneous ones, making, all told, sixty-eight.

These miscellaneous bills included one presented by Walker & Gallison for engineering work and one from R. A. Hoar for attorney services in connection with early work on the river-bed change. These bills had been presented previously, and the finance committee had been ordered to confer with the shunting law owners to see if the obligations were approved. Last night the committee reported that the shunters approved the bills, and the council ordered warrants drawn in settlement of the claims, $128.25 for Walker & Gallison's and $128.50 for the other. The expense is shared by the shunters. The other warrants, both weekly and monthly, were also ordered paid, and warrants were drawn. The amounts ranged from 60 cents up to several hundred dollars.

Along the same line, a resolution was introduced, relating to department appropriations, setting aside the following amounts:

Streets	$1,380.00
Permanent streets	1,225.00
Sewers	75.00
Public buildings	200.00
Health	20.00
Street sprinkling	185.00

This resolution was passed to a second reading. A resolution relating to the printing of the annual city report was also accepted.

DEATH BLOW BY TON GIRDER

James Steenbarger Killed at Drown's Garage

AS LIFTING CHAIN BROKE

Victim Was Standing Directly Under One End of Huge Iron Beam When It Fell from Height of 7 Feet--He Went to Work There Yesterday.

Caught by the fall of a 2,080 pound girder and crushed to the earth, James N. Steenbarger, a laborer, received injuries while working at Drown's new garage on Jefferson street this morning which resulted in his death one hour later at the City hospital, where he was rushed in Hooker & Co.'s ambulance. It was the first accident in the course of the building's construction.

The work of putting the large steel girders in place had just been started, and one of the girders was being lifted by the derrick. Steenbarger with several other workmen being engaged in guiding the course of the unwieldy mass. He was holding to the rope on one end of the girder, the lifting chain being attached to the center. Steenbarger stood almost directly beneath the girder, although it is said the rope was long enough to permit him to stand a safe distance away and still perform his work.

It was while he was in this perilous position that the lifting chain snapped, and the girder fell from a height of seven feet, pinning Steenbarger to the basement of the garage. The sharp edges of the girder fell across the man's abdomen and thighs, inflicting terrible injuries. As soon as possible the other workmen raised the girder and the victim was dragged out. The ambulance call and physician's call were promptly responded to. Dr. L. L. Leonard being soon on the scene and riding to the hospital on the ambulance. Nothing could be done to save his life, and the man breathed his last at 9 o'clock, before his relatives could reach the hospital from their residence on River street.

Dr. Leonard found that the man had sustained the severest injuries to the upper part of the right leg just below the hip. It is probable that the pelvis was fractured and there were other serious flesh wounds in the same region. On the left leg, the knee was found to be in a bad condition because of a deep flesh wound. From the peculiar position of the lower limbs, it is thought that several of the smaller bones may have been fractured in the accident.

Contractor A. B. Lane said that he hired Steenbarger on this job only yesterday, although at various times the man had been employed by him. Mr. Lane also stated that the man had been warned many times to beware of the danger, although the same chain had lifted other girders of similar weight.

For the past eight years, Mr. Steenbarger had lived in Barre, coming here from Bangor, N. Y., in 1903. He was born in Bangor July 4, 1860. He was married in 1885 to Miss Mary Riley in Westville, N. Y. His second marriage, to Miss Adeline Cleveland, took place in Barre thirteen years ago. During his residence in this city, the deceased had been employed as a day laborer. He leaves, besides his wife, one son, Herbert Steenbarger, living in Malone, N. Y., and two daughters, who also live in New York state. He was a member of the Universalist church.

The funeral will be held at the house, 23 River street, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Edward C. Downey, pastor of the Universalist church, officiating. The body will be taken on the 2:15 train Thursday morning to Malone, N. Y., for burial.
